Letter from our CEO

At Pernille Corydon Jewellery we continue to support, respect and comply with the internationally agreed upon principles for sustainable development referred to in the UN Global Compact, which entails The International Bill of Human Rights (including the principles referenced by the International Labor Organization's Declaration of Fundamental Rights and Principles at Work), the UN Convention against Corruption and the Rio Declaration in the Environment and Development.

The UN 10 principles is the very base of our suppliers Code of Conduct and we continue to expect that our suppliers carry out due diligence processes so they can identify, prevent and mitigate any negative impacts on human rights, the environment or anti-corruption.

Our Code of Conduct has been updated and now contains specific and extensive policies on Child Labour and Anti-Corruption. We keep working actively to ensure development in the right direction and we do so in a respectful, constructive and positive manner.

Our continued focus has been collecting data, mapping our supply chain, risk assessment and management, and keeping our commitment to do more good than harm.

The global pandemic has shown us how vulnerable we all are and how important it is to have a responsible, honest and close relationship with our suppliers. We have made it our priority to support our suppliers and customers during these difficult times as we are all humbly dependent on each other.

We are, more than ever, committed to making better choices to minimize our social, environmental and economic impact. We are committed to being the best version of us.
